

Bio

Kwaku Osei Owusu Achim (b. 1991) is an emerging conceptual contemporary Ghanaian artist based in Accra, Ghana, focusing on the intersection between how we see ourselves in the world and how our surroundings see us. He completed his studies at Yeshua Institute of Technology, where he focused on Medical Data. He worked in the medical field as an assistant at St. John of God Hospital and New Horizon, where he felt this passion for visual arts came through. During his one year of volunteer experience at the facilities, he taught art to children with autism. From there, he got a range of inspiration from the way they communicated with their hands. He finds inspiration from Jean-Michel Basquiat, Egon Shiele and Salvador Dali. He is a recipient; visiting fellow at the 2021 Noldor Residency in Accra, Ghana.
